

Carrie Miller, MS

As the Executive Director for Breakthrough Pittsburgh at Sewickley Academy, Carrie Miller specializes in strategic programming for students resulting in motivation that encourages sustainable learning and drives high school graduation rates and college matriculation. The program develops critical thinking skills encouraging research-based engagement with content. Ms. Miller's previous work experience as an educator turned administrator in the public-school system where she was an advocate for under-resourced students and families, as well as, advocating for undervalued teachers. Ms. Miller's vast professional experience encompasses leading, coaching, retaining high performance senior management teams across education and administration. Ms. Miller earned a B.A. in General Studies from Indiana University of Pennsylvania and a M.A.T. in Elementary Education from the University of Pittsburgh and a M.S. in Education Administration from Duquesne University.

Ms. Miller believes you can accomplish anything with the right amount of time, planning, dedication, and stamina. In addition to her role with Sewickley Academy, she is a regional board member of Strong Women Strong Girls, a founding board member of The Nelson Foundation and holds several memberships within the nonprofit sector.