

Candis Jones, MS

Candis Jones is a bank secrecy professional focused on helping financial institutions mitigate risk by developing strategic policies and procedures to reduce financial crimes. Candis graduated from Virginia Commonwealth University with a BA and Strayer University with a MA in Public Administration.

She started her banking career in her hometown of Newport News, VA in 2005. In her various roles, she worked actively to expand the footprint of many local banks in the community and grow clientele and bottom-line savings. Candis relocated to Dallas-Fort Worth in 2017 and became an active member of the Greater Irving-Las Colinas Chamber of Commerce, works closely with non-profits to teach financial literacy in lower income areas, serve as a board member on the Boyd Nelson Foundation and the Deer Park Homeowners Association, coordinates the annual Accelerated Momentum Conference, and mentors aspiring bank management professionals.

Candis is passionate about her two amazing children and husband and loves to spend her downtime traveling, pretending to be a food critic, and listening to audio books. She aspires to continue her career trajectory into enterprise risk and establish diversity and inclusion protocol across institutions.
